

Wanchai Hash Run 1127/Sek Kong Run 1572 - 7 December 2008

Good to see old faces from Sek Kong Hash (SKH3) as we assembled in first-rate hash country for a run laid by master hare Captain Pubic. Bad luck to the sizeable number of Wanchai hashers who couldn't make it – the four interchanges on the newly merged MTR system were obviously a major challenge to you buggers.

It was at the last interchange that I bumped into Coco and Indy. Indy was bemoaning the cold weather and the effect on her dry skin.

Departing the train, the pack was found assembling at a raised sitting-out area complete with barking dogs, banging Lion Dance gongs and Gunpowder Plod shouting loudly “what time does the 3pm run actually start.” Meanwhile a highly energetic female runner was bouncing around in front of a photographer, who it emerged was from the SCMP. So much for a peaceful day in the countryside.

The hare Captain Pubic then appeared, quickly gave instructions and pointed the hash in the direction of the loud Lion Dance gongs. The pack rapidly sprinted off to a check which had most guessing. Check inevitably headed left up to a large hill accessible along a drainage channel. Cunningly, the hare had removed some of the drain covers to expose large holes. Even more cunning, he had labelled “care” after each hole.

Up to a set of steps leading to Amah Rock which soon strung out the pack. Rambos to the fore, led by Liberace, Priscilla, Old Sock, Hopeless, Strap On Sally and Caligula. Plodders to the rear with Motormouth, Golden Balls and Tight Clit. Up to a catchwater and a check which headed left. Then to another check with a Rambos/Wimps split. One bright spark on the Sek Kong Hash (Montreal) thought the R and W stood for Right and Wrong.

The Rambos headed up into the hills. Your erstwhile scribe headed along the catchwater on the wimps in tow with former AGM Shitler who was bemoaning the crap state of British public transport (it was called British Rail in my day) and the work ethic of British workers. Born in Hong Kong, the autocratic AGM had moved back to UK 5 years ago.

On up again into the hills and with the intrepid Captain Pubic running along capturing magic moments on his camera. A quick view at the top of the hill with Shatin in all its majestic splendor. Then back down to the catchwater at which point the Rambos rejoined and it was on down. Ambling down the road we were overtaking by a high-speed flotilla of Rambos headed by Chatroom Pedophile, Eunuch, Old Sock and Indy. Down again to a check and then into a public housing estate that had all of the hallmarks of a ET construction and to the road. At the road it was on left and then back to the start.

As it was an early start there was plenty of time for a sun-aided cool-off and a catch up of the latest news and gossip from SKH3. Lesbian Buttslap was a notable non-runner.
