The Warm Up,

Typical hot, muggy, rainy Hong Kong weather prevailed as the crowd gathered for a very special Bwaer Wabbit birthday run. Bad news for him in that a rain shower passed over his trail after setting but before the hash leaving him to scurry around trying to re-set what he could. But it was really hot. It was so hot that Tiny Teepee couldn't do his usual pre-hash push-ups. It was so hot that most of us sat motionless wondering what we were doing even showing up. But for one FRB Harriette it just wasn't miserable enough. That of course would be our very own Hickey Slut who -not seeing a hill she doesn't like- intentionally got off the bus early so she could walk up hill to the A. Unfortunately for The Virgin Mary who was using her for guidance, she unintentionally had to walk up the hill as well.

The hares turn-up with a car, we load all our bags and wait for the briefing. The briefing for the Rambos is most of the markings are washed out, it will take four hours and I'm not telling you where B is. That counts me out; I'll be a wimp. For the Wimps, we get escorted to the proper trail, pointed in the right direction, and told where B is. That's more like it.

The Run,

Looking at the GPS map, it looks like the Wimps were given a three and a half K head start over the Rambos. The Wimps started on a catch water, joined a trail, and then went downhill to Repulse Bay, easy as that. Seems the Rambos had a more interesting time as I've seen two very different GPS maps from different Rambos. But everyone ended up in the right place.

The Cool-Off,

Nice drinks and munchies were supplied to the exhausted hashers upon arrival at B. I thought the facilities were pretty good. More than up to hash standards, but I was wrong. I got an earful from The Virgin Mary the showers were not posh enough and she was thus unable to take a "proper shower". I believe for the rest of us, everything was just fine. It was also on the cool down that we lost our Maggie Free status as she showed up to B claiming she did the full run. Sure you did. Remember Maggie; All Wanchai runs start in Mei Foo!

The Circle,

Circle began under a couple of flimsy something or others as a squally storm pissed down rain on us.
