This Weeks Run...

Run No:	Hares:	Place:	Date:
1171	Captain Pubic Hair, Bondi Barbie	Sham Tseng BBQ Area Site No. 1	04 OCT 2009

The Warm-Up

This being a bus run, our warm up started on Fenwick Street in Wanchai for a 1:30PM departure. Following a recent bus run from a lesser hash in which Motormouth missed the bus, the crowd anxiously awaited to see if she would miss again. But alas with the coach about to leave Motormouth appears and we are on our way.

F3M spent her bus ride going down the aisle collecting hash cash and trying to keep her balance. This was clearly taking a toll as by the time she reached my aisle towards the back she was looking rather pale and Indy Anus and I were wondering which one of us she was going to puke on. A couple sips of water made things right and money was collected without any ugly incidences.

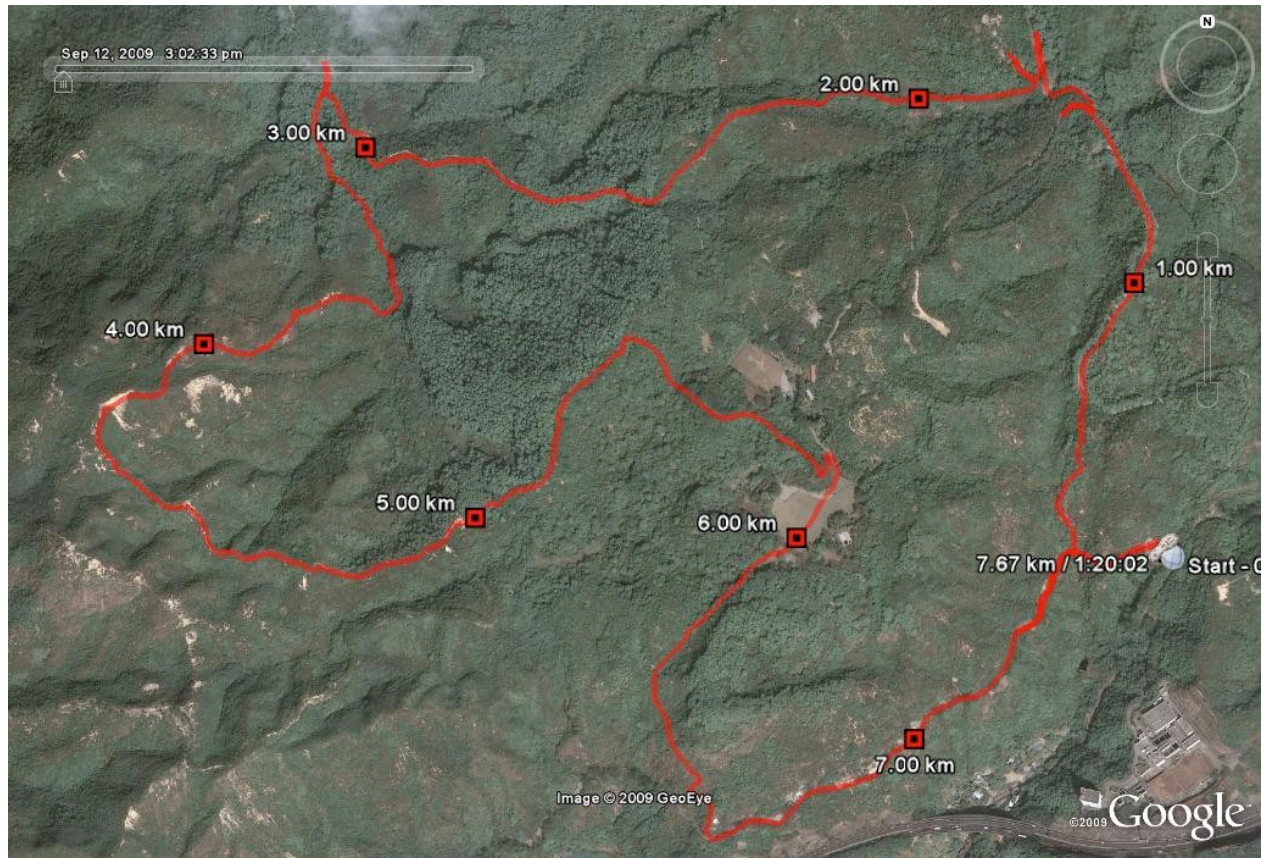

Dr. Doom took his place all the way at the back now having a full Filipina entourage with him. G-String plus two, and including a beautiful young virgin.

Arriving at A, we were reminded of the importance of this run, as Big P hung up a Happy Birthday poster for SamDim whose Birthday is this week. Sadly she has been taken from us far to early and today's run is our chance as her friends and hashing companions to remember her and celebrate her life by spending the day hashing on her favorite trails.

And who better to set the trails than Captain Pubic Hair and Bondi-Barbie. The briefing gave us three options. The Bite'n'Suck easy trail, the moderate SamDim trail and of course the Pubic Super Rambo trail.

The Run

My friends at Google and Cente Maps didn't give me too much to go on with names so please follow along with the Hopeless Google Earth GPS map and I'll do my best.

Walkers went right and Rambos and Pubics went left. Going left along the road a CB brought the pack together and had us going up a rather steep streambed. This brought us to the Tai Lam nature trail where we hooked up with the walkers who were strolling along down the road.

Three more checks had us headed west towards the Tai Lam Chung reservoir. Trail took us through some nice vegetation and into a ravine and up a stream where the hares offered a chance to cool down at a point where the water was deep enough to submerge your head and indeed cool off as I took full advantage of.

Not a bad idea as our next bit was ascending a nearly 350M hill. By this time I could see the pack most of the way up the hill and myself assuming my usual DFL position as Yummy Mummy also pulled away. Off to the left the SamDim trail hashers could be seen and heard as they made their way along a less vertical trail.

But as I neared the top I could see someone way behind me just starting his ascent but I couldn't figure out whom it was. Obviously a late arrival.

So to the top of the hill and some unusual markings not included in our briefing. This would be the marking "Hopeless?" Okay now what? Well I could see hashers making their way in that direction so off I went and eventually to an On-On and away. Trail downhill was mostly along a dry creek bed. Not being the most nimble hasher I decided to take it slow along this craggy bit so as not to have a Community Chest moment. On the way down, my mystery hasher was now at the top of the hill yelling On-On and jumping up and down leading me to believe it was Dog Turd who had done this a few weeks ago.

As the trail descended back into the vegetation both splits came back together and we were one trail again. At Yuen Tun Camp we went across open grass with a nice view of a herd of cows. Then our long down hill took us to our original road just above Tuen Mun Road, left turn and about 800M appx. Past the first CB and on in. Hopeless has us at 7.67k's.

But who was that mystery hasher behind me. Why it was none other than BOF. Nicely done.

The Hares did -in my humble opinion- a great job on this special hash. We were treated to waterfalls, streams, good trails and shiggy, beautiful vistas, open fields, cows and a nice big hill. I think everyone will agree that you did SamDim proud!

The Circle

With the GM not patient enough for me to finish my non-posh shower, I missed the first set of DDs but it was the usual DDs to the hares and something about Boilers trying to ride a kiddie scooter and breaking it. As I joined she was thanking the RA for our gorgeous weather and passing the circle to him.

Hopeless Circle

- Pussy Whipped - Threw a slab of beer on the RA's ankle.

Bondi Barbie

Bondi finishes the circle with a few kind words for us to remember SamDim by.

The On-On

Our bus ride back to Wanchai had Bean Counter taking control of the mike and telling us some good to not so good jokes. Then we were subjected to Burl Ives singing some hash songs.

Dinner was at Spicy Fingers and we stayed until the service became so abominable that we moved to The Old China Hand.

That's where Tiny Teepee took over the mike and sang us some Beatle songs.

Thank-you SamDim for all of the pleasant memories that we will carry with us for the rest of our lives. We could not ask for a better friend. You will never be forgotten and your spirit will be with us each time we take to the trail! ON-ON
