This Weeks Run...

Run No:	Hares:	Place:	Date:
1198	F3M	VRC Deep Water Bay	07 MAR 2010

The Warm Up

Today's hash had the look of a real organised event rather than the usual haphazard one as the VRC offers tables and chairs where headquarters were set up to sign people in and more importantly, to take their money. Concern over hash finance's were to take center stage however when LSW hasher Hannah Montana showed up complete with his reputation of being able to consume large quantities of beer at a fixed rate of 60HKD.

The weather threatened to be really dismal as a cold front that had been pushing through mainland China all week finally arrived in Hong Kong causing the temperature to drop below the 20C mark with associated light rain. Our GM was bundled up appropriately enough in this seasons Wanchai fleece.

Hopeless gave the briefing and off we went...

The Run

I hate to say that it was a pretty typical F3M run but it was a pretty typical F3M run. Almost every step of it. Virgin trail was promised in the advert leaving quite a few of us scratching our heads.

So it is up the trail adjacent to the golf course, check at the catch water kept us going up, across Deep Water Bay Road and continue way up the steep stairs. I caused poor Dick the Shit to groan about old age as I passed him on the stairs wheezing and grunting. Poor thing had been passed by four hashers and now me of all people. I assured him it was him getting slower as I sure as heck am not getting faster.

The stairs took us to Black's Link and then on to the traffic interchange at Wong Nai Chung gap. W off to the right down Repulse Bay Road and R to the left toward the cricket club. Some confusion as we merged with the LSW hash on-ons but remembering that this was a typical F3M run, order was soon restored as we took Tai Tam Reservoir Rd. past the paparazzi at No. 1 Repulse Bay and on to the Tai Tam Country Trail.

Four of us were sort of together at this point, myself, Dick the Shit, Bondie Barbie, and Yummy Mummy. Bondie Barbie spent a lot of time appearing befuddled as to where this virgin trail could possibly be. We stayed together for awhile but eventually I settled into my all too familiar DFL position.

As the trail neared Repulse Bay there was a unique but I don't think virgin trail that took a right off the usual path into a more shiggy path. It was well marked and being inspected by two locals who were in amazement as these "cheesin gwilos" left a really nice path for this shiggy one.

So eventually back to the beach at Repulse Bay and boardwalk back to A at Deepwater Bay. Just under to two hours for your DFL scribe who provided much amusement for Anal Invitation as I wandered back in. Hopeless informed me no time for a shower as circle was starting in two minutes.
