This Weeks Run...

Run No:	Hares:	Place:	Date:
1200	Hopeless, Hopeless & Hopeless	Clearwater Bay Beach 2	21 st March 2010

The Warm Up

A bus run, to the swanky end of the New Territories, past University of Science & Technology and plenty of extremely expensive bits of real estate to Clearwater Bay Beach 2, just along from the exclusive local country club.

The day began with perfect weather and had many of pack contemplating any easy jog up and down the sands, maybe followed up with a gentle swim. However, there was the small matter of a run to negotiate first. Hopeless promised a "pretty flat" run. The beach could surely wait a couple of hours, the weather wasn't going to break was it?

The Run

The pack headed on out over the beach and followed Bwear Wabbit & Smallbone up a steep concrete incline to an early CB. Camel chose to ignore the marking and headed straight on, not to be seen again. The rest of us made our way back to beach, past the hare, who watched us all go past with a very self satisfied look on his face.

The first step section of our "undulating" took us over to the next beach. It wasn't long before we hit the first wimp/Rambo split. At this point we lost Anal Invitation who bounced off down the wimps trail, surely saving himself for the forthcoming exertions of his wedding night, despite F3M reminding him it only one extra km. And a fairly easy kilometre at that, even Virgin Mary managed the short contour path round to the kite flying park.

An open check allowed Little Sai W*nker & I to briefly catch up with Shut the Fcuk Up, Indyanus, CPH & Caligula. However, on the next road section allowed them to disappear into the distance again. A shiggy section brought the pack together again and it wasn't that long before we met the hare for a second time, again looking very smug at our travails.

The second Rambo split took us through more shiggy, including some very fresh new graves and then a road section, before the last split. This time it was F3M's turn to wimp, heading back to A with an Action Asia'd out CPH, Smallbone & Octopussy.

Against my better judgement I headed up steps, steps, steps to the High Junk Trail to a lookout where a couple of hours earlier there might have been good a view, but pollution had filled the void in the intervening time. The trail followed just below the ridgeline where I met a group of hikers who informed me I was "only five minutes behind the leaders". Given I was moving only slightly quicker than walking pace, I had to suppress an exclamation of "bullshit".

The trail cut off left and the end was in sight, however the direct route ran into a CB, so it was a last ascent of the steps and back down a switch back path to the main road where we came upon a group of kite fighters before the last of the trail's 13 kilometres took us gently downhill on the pavement back to the beach, where the sea & sky had greyed over and looked a lot less inviting. Suddenly, Bwear Wabbit had a queue of customers for the last two hash fleeces...
